8. Section 14 of the principal Act is hereby amended—

- (a) by the substitution in subsection (4) for paragraph (a) of the following paragraph: 25

“(a) Where, in terms of [national land transport legislation] the National Land Transport Act or the Cross-Border Road Transport Act, [1998,] it would have been permissible for the [board] regulatory entity or the Regulatory Committee, as the case may be, to take any person’s road transport law enforcement profile or previous traffic or transport-related contraventions into consideration, the Tribunal may compel any such person to give self-incriminating evidence, but the person presiding at the appeal must direct that such evidence will be given in camera and that it will not be made public, in any manner whatsoever, except by order of a competent court for the purposes of review or appeal.”; and 30 35

- (b) by the addition of the following subsections:

“(5) The Tribunal must investigate any unreasonable delay caused by a person in the completion of its proceedings or any frivolous, vexatious or irrelevant actions on the part of any person in the course of its proceedings which appear to the Tribunal to be unreasonable and which delays or actions could cause substantial prejudice to the State, the appellant or any other interested party, and must consider the following factors in deciding whether a delay is unreasonable: 40

- (a) The duration of the delay; 45
- (b) the reasons advanced for the delay;
- (c) whether any person can be held responsible for the delay;
- (d) the effect of the delay on the personal or financial circumstances of the State, the appellant or any other interested party; and
- (e) any other factor which, in the opinion of the Tribunal, must be taken into account. 50

(6) If the Tribunal finds that the completion of its proceedings is being delayed unreasonably, or that any action is frivolous, vexatious or irrelevant, it may issue any order that it considers necessary to eliminate the delay or action concerned and any prejudice resulting from it or to prevent further delay or prejudice, including an order—

(a) refusing further postponement of the proceedings; or

(b) granting a postponement subject to such conditions as it may determine.”.
